Dear Chairmen Neal and Pallone and Ranking Members Brady and Walden,

The undersigned behavioral health and patient advocacy organizations urge Congress to address the mental health and addictions impact of the COVID-19 pandemic and include H.R. 945, the Mental Health Access Improvement Act, in the next relief package. H.R. 945 would allow licensed mental health counselors and marriage and family therapists to bill Medicare for medically necessary behavioral health services. Mental health and addiction issues have been exacerbated by this public health crisis and require proactive legislative solutions.

The Bipartisan Policy Center's (BPC) Rural Health Task Force released a report this month recommending that licensed mental health counselors and marriage and family therapists be added to the list of Medicare providers as a method of increasing access to care. The BPC highlighted how the report's policy recommendations offer solutions to the challenges raised by the COVID-19 pandemic.

According to the National Academy of Medicine, older adults are consistently underserved when it comes to behavioral health care. In the COVID-19 context, this is no different. The CDC and The Lancet medical journal both report that older adults are at an elevated risk of hospitalization and admission to an intensive care unit due to COVID-19. Moreover, roughly 4 out of 5 COVID-19 deaths are people who are 65 or older based on emerging CDC data. The increased risk of hospitalization and death, coupled with the intense social isolation resulting from extended stay-at-home orders, are creating a behavioral health crisis among the Medicare population.

Mental health counselors and marriage and family therapists comprise 40% of the mental health workforce and are licensed to provide medically necessary behavioral health services in every state. They are serving clients via telehealth through Medicaid and other programs, and they have the capacity to treat Medicare beneficiaries this way as well. Furthermore, they are often the only mental health professional available to underserved populations in many counties across the country. As telehealth and other solutions are considered in emergency response legislation, Congress must bolster the mental health workforce to deal with a coming surge in demand.

Please include H.R. 945 in the next COVID-19 relief legislation and allow Medicare beneficiaries access to mental health counselors and marriage and family therapists.
